

Kristina Alafoginis-Vedder

Kristina has been with CEB for over 7 years where she was most recently working as Sr. IT Program Manager. She was responsible for helping to bring product ideas to life in CEB's web space as well as ensure good health and hygiene of our member facing web systems. Kristina has a passion for Agile project methodology and her colleagues rely on her to lead project teams using best practice methodologies with excellent stakeholder partnership, communication skills, ownership and commitment to positive outcomes and good judgement. We are excited to announce that she has recently accepted a new role with us as the Head of EPMO where she will continue provide stellar leadership and process driven expertise. Kristina is also a proud member of our Women at CEB group!

Kris van Riper

Kris is CEB's Government Practice Leader where she works with government executives in information technology, finance and human resources to help them navigate critical business issues. This gives Kris a unique perspective of the similarities and differences across agencies and the knowledge that can be shared between them. She combines her cross-functional public-sector viewpoint with her previous experience working with Fortune 500 companies to provide comprehensive support to today's agency leaders as they work to transform their organizations in the face of budget cuts and increased scrutiny. Kris has advised leadership teams in the public and private sector on a wide variety of projects. Whether transforming IT and finance functions, ensuring smooth leadership transitions or identifying, prioritizing and executing cost-efficiency plans, her favorite part of the job is interacting one-on-one with CEB members to understand the specific challenges they face.

Veena Variyam

Veena is a highly accomplished, multifaceted IT professional with extensive technology research, practitioner, and service delivery experience and is currently a Research Director for our CEB PMO Leadership Council. She has a proven track record of generating strategic analyses, leading multinational teams, and effectively interfacing with senior IT executives. She is adept at planning, developing and implementing cutting-edge information solutions to address business opportunities. Her areas of expertise include Infrastructure Management, IT Strategy and Execution, Technology Research Enterprise IT Systems and IT Strategic Sourcing.

Lindsay Mutimer

Lindsay is a Quantitative Director with CEB's IT Practice where she manages a portfolio of quantitative products and benchmarks, designs surveys and diagnostic services, and conducts new-in-kind quantitative research. She works with a team of analysts who oversee client engagements through survey administration, results analysis, and development of action planning. Many of these engagements have been centered on providing Fortune 500 IT leaders with insight into setting priorities through maturity assessments, improving IT-business alignment, bolstering the effectiveness of their project managers, and assessing spending and staffing levels within their IT organization. Lindsay works closely with CEB members to understand their context and align CEB's research and services to best support them in their challenges.

Erin Rogers

Erin is the IT Portfolio Manager in the Corporate IT Group. Responsible for the daily management and oversight of IT's multi-million-dollar budget, Erin has managed financial and resource analysts in the US, UK, and India and has assisted with technology investment prioritization and portfolio reporting to the highest levels of CEB. Erin is well known for her spirit of generosity and helping IT colleagues around the globe be good stewards of assets.
